TEAM NOTES

Sunday’s game was the sixth postseason game between the Avalanche and the Blues. The clubs have met in the Stanley Cup Playoffs once, in 2001 as Colorado took a 4-1 series win in the Western Conference Finals.

Colorado’s 16 shots in the opening period is its most in a single frame in the postseason since April 17, 2019 when it recorded 17 shots in the second period of Game 4 vs. Calgary.

INDIVIDUAL NOTES

Nazem Kadri scored the game-winning goal at 19:59 of the third period, tied for the latest game winner in regulation in postseason history. Carolina’s Jussi Jokinen also scored at 19:59 in Game 4 of the 2009 Conference Quarterfinals against New Jersey.

Kadri’s tally was the first postseason game winner of his career and his first career playoff power-play marker. He also recorded six shots, which matches his most in a playoff contest in his career (also: April 15, 2017 at Washington).

Ryan Graves made his Stanley Cup Playoff debut and scored his first postseason goal.
