Washington Capitals

vs. Carolina – 7.29.20

Washington Capitals Preseason Notes

HOCKEY IN JULY – The Capitals face the Carolina Hurricanes in an exhibition game at Scotiabank Arena on Wednesday. The game preludes Washington's Round Robin play that begins on Aug. 3 against the Tampa Bay Lightning. It marks the Capitals first game since March 9 against the Buffalo Sabres, a span of 143 days, and the first time in franchise history the Capitals have played a game in the month of July. In addition, it marks the earliest game – including preseason, regular season and the playoffs – in franchise history. Previously, the earliest game the Capitals had played was on Sept. 12, 1989 when the Capitals faced Farjestad BK in Karlstad, Sweden (7-4 loss).

METRO WINNERS – The Capitals finished first in the Metropolitan Division, marking their fifth consecutive division title, the first time in franchise history they have accomplished the feat. The Capitals became the eighth franchise in NHL history to win five consecutive division titles and the first since the Anaheim Ducks from 2012-13 to 2016-17.

END OF A RARE STREAK – From 2014-15 to 2018-19, the Capitals recorded five consecutive 100-point seasons, the only active team in the NHL with as many during that time. With 90 points in 69 games before the suspension-shortened 2019-20 season, the Capitals were again on pace to reach the 100-point mark. Had they reached 100 points, the Capitals would have become the fourth franchise in NHL history to reach the mark six consecutive times, joining the Detroit Red Wings (12 times: 1999-00 to 2011-12), the Montreal Canadiens (eight times: 1974-75 to 1981-82) and the Edmonton Oilers (1981-82 to 1986-87).

Team	Streak Started	Streak Ended	Total Seasons
Detroit Red Wings	1999-00	2011-12	12
Montreal Canadiens	1974-75	1981-82	8
Edmonton Oilers	1981-82	1986-87	6

Over the last six seasons, the Capitals are 294-135-50, and have recorded the most points in the NHL during that time span, while their 1,512 goals are second and their 1,256 goals against are tied for fourth.

ANOTHER ROCKET – Capitals captain Alex Ovechkin, who extended his NHL record with his ninth career Maurice "Rocket" Richard Trophy as the NHL's top goal scorer, scored 48 goals this season and was on pace for 57 goals, which would have been the second-highest total of his career, his highest total since 2007-08 (65g) and the ninth time Ovechkin would have reached the 50-goal mark. Ovechkin was on pace to join Wayne Gretzky and Mike Bossy as the only players in NHL history with nine 50-goal seasons. He would have also joined Phil Esposito as the only players in NHL history to record at least three 50-goal seasons after their 30th birthday (Esposito: four). Additionally, Ovechkin would have become the second-oldest player in NHL history to record a 50-goal season, only trailing Johnny Buyck (35 years, 308 days old at the conclusion of the 1970-71 season). Ovechkin is entering his 12th career postseason, where he currently ranks first among active players in playoff goals per game (65g in 128 games, 0.51 goals per game) and third in points per game (0.98 points per game). Ovechkin's 128 career playoff games are tied for 16th among active players.

JOHNNY FOR NORRIS – John Carlson is one of three finalists for the Norris Trophy, which is presented annually to the top defenseman in the NHL. Carlson joins Nashville's Roman Josi and Tampa Bay's Victor Hedman as the three finalists. Carlson is aiming for his first career Norris Trophy as the NHL's top defenseman. Carlson could become the second player in franchise history to claim the prestigious award since Rod Langway in 1982-83 and 1983-84. Carlson's 75 points in 69 games this season (15g, 60a) led all defensemen, 10 points ahead Josi and 20 points ahead of Hedman, who finished second and third among defensemen in points, respectively. Carlson is the eighth defenseman in NHL history to hold a 10 point lead over the next highest scoring defenseman and a 20 point lead over the third highest scoring defenseman and the first since Erik Karlsson (Ottawa) in 2011-12. Karlsson won the Norris Trophy that season. Carlson enters the 2019-20 playoffs as the Capitals' all-time leader among defensemen in playoff points (60), goals (18) and games (107).

COMEBACK KIDS – During the 2019-20 season, the Capitals won 21 games after trailing by at least one goal at some point in the game, tied with the St. Louis Blues for the most instances in the NHL. Washington also held a 17-16-3 record when they allowed the game's first goal, the second-highest win percentage in the NHL (.472). Additionally, the Capitals' 11-12-3 record when trailing after the first period marked the second-highest win percentage in the NHL (.423), while their 9-17-2 record when trailing after the second period marked the highest win percentage in the NHL (.321). The Capitals are the only team in the NHL that ranked in the top two in each of the three categories.

PENALTY S-KILL – The Capitals penalty kill ranked sixth in the NHL, killing 199 of the 241 penalties they faced (82.6 percent). That's a 3.7 percent improvement from last year's penalty kill (78.9 percent), which ranked 24th in the NHL. The Capitals allowed 42.22 shots per 60 minutes of penalty kill time this season, the second lowest rate in the NHL. Jonas Siegenthaler (203:46), Radko Gudas (172:16) and Carl Hagelin (169:30) led the Capitals in penalty kill ice time, and all three established full time roles with the Capitals within the last year. Additionally, Nick Jensen's 2.98 power play goals against per 60 minutes of penalty kill time ranked first in the NHL among players with at least 120 minutes played on the penalty kill this season.

Washington Capitals

vs. Carolina – 7.29.20

SAT% - This season, the Capitals' 51.6 shot attempt percentage at five-on-five was the third-highest total since the NHL began tracking the data in 2009-10 (2009-10: 52.8 shot attempt percentage; 2016-17: 51.8 shot attempt percentage). Lars Eller led the Capitals with a 55.8 shot attempt percentage at five-on-five (908 shot attempts for, 717 against), which was the third-highest percentage by a Capital since the NHL began recording the data in 2009-10 (Alex Ovechkin, 2009-10: 57.6 shot attempt percentage; Nicklas Backstrom, 2009-10: 56.5 shot attempt percentage).

SWEET NICKY - Nicklas Backstrom enters the 2019-20 playoffs ranked first on the franchise's playoff assist list (70) and second in games played (123), goals (36) and points (106). His four playoff overtime goals are the most in franchise history, and no other player has more than two. Backstrom is one of just four active players with at least four playoff overtime goals (Patrick Kane: 5; Corey Perry and Patrick Marleau: 4). Additionally, Backstrom's 0.57 assists per game rate is tied for third among players entering the 2019-20 playoffs with at least 100 games played (Sidney Crosby: 0.73; Evgeni Malkin: 0.65; Kane: 0.57). Since his first season in 2007-08, Backstrom's 684 assists rank first in the NHL. With 42 assists in 61 games this year, Backstrom was on pace to finish with 50 assists before the season was suspended. Had he reached the mark, he would have become the 19th player in NHL history to record seven consecutive 50-assist seasons. Of the 18 players to achieve this feat, 16 are in the Hockey Hall of Fame. The two that are not – Henrik Sedin and Joe Thornton – are not yet eligible for the Hall of Fame.

HOLTBEAST - With 25 wins this season, Braden Holtby climbed to 45th on the NHL's all-time wins list by a goaltender. In the 2019-20 season, Holtby passed notable goaltenders Ken Dryden, Jean-Sebastien Giguere, Felix Potvin, Bernie Parent and Marty Turco en route to 45th. Holtby is the only goaltender to rank in the NHL's top-50 with fewer than 500 games played (468). With 13 games remaining on the schedule prior to the season suspension, Holtby was on pace to record his sixth consecutive 30 win season, which would have made him one of 10 goaltenders in NHL history to accomplish the feat. Holtby enters the playoffs ranking second in NHL history among goaltenders with at least 50 career playoff games in save percentage (.928) and tied for seventh in goals against average (2.09).

CAREER YEAR FOR WILLY - Tom Wilson recorded a career high 44 points (21g, 23a) this season, also setting a new career high in assists. Additionally, Wilson set career highs in power play goals (5), game-winning goals and scored his first career overtime goal on Nov. 7 against the Florida Panthers. During the suspension-shortened season, Wilson had 93 penalty minutes in 68 games, on pace for 110 penalty minutes, which would have been the lowest total of his career. Additionally, Wilson played in his 500th career game on Jan. 13 against the Carolina Hurricanes, where he became the 28th player in franchise history to reach the mark. At 25 years and 290 days old on the day of the game, Wilson became the third youngest player and the youngest forward in franchise history to play 500 games (Scott Stevens: 24 years, 264 days; Kevin Hatcher: 25 years, 139 days). Over the last two postseasons, Wilson has averaged 0.71 points per game (20 points in 28 playoff games), the sixth-highest rate on the Capitals during that span. Wilson also leads the NHL in hits (134) over the last two postseasons.

OSH BABE - Oshie ranked second on the Capitals this season with 26 goals in 69 games. During the 2018-19 season, Oshie also played in 69 games and finished the season with 25 goals. This season marked Oshie's fourth as a Capital with at least 25 goals. He had never reached the 25 goals mark in his seven seasons with the St. Louis Blues prior to joining the Capitals in 2015-16. Oshie became the ninth player in franchise history to record four 25-goal seasons. Oshie's nine goals over the last two postseasons are tied for 15th in the NHL.

YOUNG V - This season, Jakub Vrana set career highs in both goals (25), even strength goals (24) and assists (27), despite having 13 games remaining on the schedule. Vrana was on pace to score 28 even-strength goals over an 82-game season and become one of two players in NHL history to reach the mark while averaging less than 15 minutes per game (Vrana: 14:53 TOI; Chicago's Dominik Kubalik had 26 even-strength goals this season while averaging 14:22 TOI this season). Vrana's 24 even-strength goals were tied for the 11th-most in the NHL. Additionally, on Nov. 3 against the Calgary Flames, Vrana scored the Capitals' first three goals of the game, including the game-winner, to record his first career hat trick. The next day, Vrana earned the NHL's Second Star of the Week honors, and at the age of 23 years and 249 days, became the youngest Capital to receive the honor since Nicklas Backstrom in 2008 (20 years, 358 days).

NICE AND KUZY - With a 52-point season (19g, 33a), Evgeny Kuznetsov became the 14th player in franchise history to record at least five 50-point seasons. Each of Kuznetsov's 50-point seasons have been in the last five seasons, making him one of nine players to do so consecutively. Kuznetsov's 1.41 assists per 60 minutes of play ranked first among Capitals with at least 30 games played and tied for 37th in the NHL. Over the last two postseasons, Kuznetsov's 38 points (13g, 25a) lead the Capitals and rank third in the NHL.

YEAR OF LARS - Lars Eller established a new career high with 39 points (16g, 23a) this season and recorded a 51.89 face-off percentage, his highest since joining the Capitals in 2016-17. Eller led the Capitals with a 55.8 shot attempt percentage at five-on-five (908 shot attempts for, 717 against), which was not only a personal career high for Eller, it was the third-highest percentage by a Capital since the NHL began recording the data in 2009-10 (Alex Ovechkin, 2009-10: 57.6 shot attempt percentage; Nicklas Backstrom, 2009-10: 56.5 shot attempt percentage). Additionally, it was the sixth-highest percentage by a forward with at least 69 games this season. Eller ranks sixth on the Capitals with 21 points (8g, 13a) over the last two postseasons.
